

Bennett Hits At Writers

By T. A. MYERS
Colonist Legislative Reporter
VANCOUVER — "Poison Pen" newspaper and magazine writers are pouring out "black leading propaganda" to block the spread of Social Credit across the nation, Premier W. A. C. Bennett charged here Wednesday night.

The premier spoke to a predominantly female audience of 132 at the end of Wednesday's Social Credit women's auxiliary convention and on the eve of the B.C. Social Credit League's provincial convention.

The women heard the premier's most outspoken attack on the press, a favorite Social target, since the one he launched in mid-campaign last May.

SHARPEN AXE
The premier noted Social Credit was still running into newspaper criticism in spite of a full year of achievement and fulfilled promises. He didn't mind that, he said. "After all, it's the emery stone that sharpens the axe."

But "certain" newspapers and magazines were misleading the people with false propaganda, he said. He cited an article by B. K. Sandwell, former editor of Toronto Saturday Night, in the Financial Post of September 26. He quoted Mr. Sandwell as saying "Premier Bennett is reported to have said that the minimum age for voters in B.C. would be lowered to 19 for high school graduates and college students only. All others would have to wait until they were 21 to vote."

Mr. Sandwell's article expressed fear that the principle of setting educational standards for voters would be extended. "What utter rot!" the premier exploded as he read the piece. "You see how they do it: they start with a false statement and then build a great case on it and circulate it all across Canada."

"That's the kind of tactic that brings certain newspapers and magazines into disrepute," he said. "These people with their poison pens are afraid to meet the direct challenge of Social Credit. . . they are endeavoring to mislead the people of Canada. . . They are so prejudiced, so biased and so fearful of the great onward march of Social Credit that they will stop at nothing," he said. "They are afraid to tell the truth about Social Credit because they know it would spread across Canada."

He assured the audience that "Social Credit will continue to stand, irrespective of men like Sandwell and his ilk. . . we fear them not."

DON'T BE BITTER
Now that the Sandwell article had been "shown up across Canada," he said, it would do Social Credit more good than all the speeches party members had ever made.

Then he asked his followers "not to become bitter over this or bitter about the press."

"Some of the ladies rejected this advice. As reporters filed out of the meeting, one delegate called after them, 'Good riddance to bad rubbish.'"

Premier Bennett told the audience he hadn't come to make a speech, but had just dropped in for a "friendly little chat with the ladies." The "chat" included this blunt warning to any Social Credit males who happened to be listening: "There may be some in our ranks who think because we are now the government they are entitled to certain things."

"But I want to tell them. . . they are entitled to good government and nothing more. We must keep the patronage evil out."

LYDIA HARSCH
Mrs. Lydia Arsens, Social Credit member for Victoria and only woman M.L.A., also cast a harsh look at the press.

"I've heard a reporter say that we're the most taxing government in Canada. . . that's not true," she said. The government had only taxed logging and mining profits and put a tax on drinks. "I know so many people thought they were going to get a new liquor act and no tax. . . that's just too unreasonable to consider."

Mrs. Arsens predicted Finance Minister Einar Gunderson would win his seat in Victoria in the coming by-election.

She paid a tribute to the late Education Minister Tilly Rolston, and the ladies stood for a moment in silent respect to Mrs. Rolston's memory. Part of the collection taken at the meeting was sent to the B.C. Cancer Society to further research on the disease which took Mrs. Rolston's life.

Admitted Red Courier Accuses Americans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Elizabeth Bentley, an admitted Soviet spy ring courier during the Second World War, has testified she passed Moscow-directed orders to two former U.S. treasury officials in a plot to aid Russia in 1943-44.

Miss Bentley named Nathan Silvermaster and Ludwig Ullman as the two who allegedly helped Russia get U.S. plates to print vast sums of wartime money.

Arabs Attack U.S. Offices

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Arabs angered by the Jordan-Israeli border situation smashed office windows of the United States Information Service here Wednesday and wrecked a U.S. embassy car.

Troops of Jordan's Arab Legion, guarding British, American and French diplomatic quarters, repulsed an attempt by the demonstrators to force their way into the USIS headquarters.

Arab resentment at United States backing for Israel in the last five years was reflected in the outburst, apparently sparked by the alleged Israeli attack October 14 on three border villages in which Jordan authorities reported 66 persons were killed.

A three-hour strike was held in various towns of Jordan as a protest against the Israeli attack. Business was suspended, buses and taxis stopped running.

Gunman Gets Theatre Cash

CALGARY (CP)—A young gunman held up the Capitol Theatre in downtown Calgary in broad daylight Wednesday and escaped on foot with an undetermined amount of cash. The man walked into the theatre and pointed a .32-calibre revolver at cashier Margaret McDonald and demanded the money in the till.

Explanations Still Off Despite Red Return

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communist Poles and Czechs ended a three-day boycott of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission today, but there was no prospect that stalled Red "explanations" to balking prisoners would be resumed soon.

The two Communist delegations quit the last commission meeting Monday when the representatives from Sweden, Switzerland and India voted down their proposal that anti-Red North Korean prisoners be forced out of their compounds.

DELAYS INDEFINITE
Thimayya said the talks would not be resumed unless the Communists agree to talk to Chinese captives willing to meet them or until balking North Korean PWs agree to come out of their compounds for interviews.

Thimayya has asked the leaders of nearly 8,000 North Korean PWs to go peacefully before the Red "explanations." An answer is expected Friday.

Community Chest Reaches $137,130

According to an audit Wednesday night another $73,550 will put the Red Feather campaign over the top. Official figure now stands at $137,130.

With big donations scheduled to come in from the industrial commercial division within the next few days there is an excellent possibility that the mark will be reached by the end of this week, officials said.

According to A. de B. McPhillips, who is chairman of the professional men's division, the number of call boxes has made the drive very slow.

"On the other hand we are gratified to note a substantial increase in individual donations this year," he said.

All over the city the big army of volunteer canvassers is finding out that it "takes longer to collect more."

F. E. Winslow, special names division chairman, reports that he has nearly completed his job. F. N. Cabell, who is in charge of the armed forces canvass, reports that he is within 80 per cent of his quota. "We have more money to come and are certain to make the target," he added.

Confidence Vote Called on Colony

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill demanded a House of Commons vote of confidence Wednesday on his government's action in rushing troops to British Guiana and suspending the colony's six-month-old constitution in fear of a Communist coup.

The vote will be taken today at the end of formal debate on the action.

The government's motion asked the House to approve "the action of Her Majesty's government in British Guiana. It was signed by Sir Winston, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton and Housing Minister Harold MacMillan.

Labor MPs at a private meeting decided to vote against the motion. However, unless something unforeseen occurs, the government should win the test.

A government white paper Tuesday charged that the People's Progressive Party, headed by former Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan, followed the now-established Communist routine to take over the government of the colony, which is within striking distance of the Panama Canal.

Jagan and his former education minister, Linden Burnham, arrived in London Wednesday to deny any Communist plot in Guiana.

Hopkinson, as colonial affairs minister, has been questioning various groups in the colony.

Hopkinson said Britain's seizure of Premier Cheddi Jagan's government two weeks ago had been not only "justified, but absolutely essential."

He conferred Tuesday with several PPP leaders—excluding Mrs. Janet Jagan, who boycotted the session. The party leaders were courteous, he said, but evaded the question whether or not they were Communists.

The minister also said: "Taxation and threats of industrial nationalization had resulted in lower capital investment and cut down the colony's industrial expansion."

Hopkinson said the Canadian-bauxite company had showed reluctance to expand its $300,000 investment. He said the PPP denied any intention of nationalizing the bauxite industry, but there was clear evidence that such an intention had been repeatedly and publicly expressed.

Of British Guiana's 273 schools 250 were church establishments. Church leaders of various faiths had complained in him about PPP plans to revise textbooks and take over church-owned buildings.

RCMP Deny Charge Of Brutality to Sect

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Charges of RCMP brutality toward Sons of Freedom arrested September 9 at Perry Sliding near here "are completely unfounded," official sources said Wednesday night.

Charges of "violently attacking the group with blackjacks" and "striking men and women into unconsciousness" made by Freedomites now imprisoned are "utterly false," Inspector J. B. Harris, commanding officer, said.

This was corroborated in a report to RCMP by Dr. N. E. Morrison, summoned to the scene at police request.

In his report, Dr. Morrison said he examined the people "who claimed to have been injured by police."

"Those claiming injury were all women and were examined in some detail and found that all were in a high state of excitement and hysteria."

"In no case did I find serious injury and most injuries complained of were welts on the skin which would appear to have been caused by a light flat instrument such as a strap. There were no lacerations and no large bruises."

Over 300 persons moved to the tent village, called "Poiatka," in late August and early September, where they said they gathered to pray. In full view of the Number 6 highway leading to the Sloan Valley and in view of the Perry Sliding school house, they paraded about in the nude, "defying warnings issued by the members of the RCMP that such action would lead to complaints and consequent arrests," Inspector Harris said.

An advertisement published by imprisoned Sons of Freedom in a Nelson newspaper Wednesday, charged police attacked the group without "a word of warning."

"A mob of women, stripped, crying and screaming at officers, attacked members of the RCMP. The men were forced to use their riding crops to protect themselves and to ward off the hysterical mass," Inspector Harris said. After a battle with some 200 Freedomite women, two men were arrested.

Doukhobors charged in the advertisement that the arrested men were "dragged leaving trails of blood," a statement "definitely untrue," the inspector said.

Firm Claimed Planning Hotel In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver newspaper says in a newspaper story today the Conrad Hilton International hotel building a "multi-million-dollar" hotel in Vancouver.

The paper said a Hilton representative was in the city a week ago completing a survey of Vancouver's hotel needs and likely locations.

Mayor Fred Hume, who has been leading a drive for more hotel accommodation here, said he "could not say anything yet" on the report.

City Cars Damaged In Saanich Crashes

Saanich police Wednesday night attended two accidents with a total damage of $700. A car driven by Douglas Bayington, 1965 Bowker Plare, was traveling north on Richmond Road when it was in collision with a car driven by Nancy Chew, R.R. 1, Royal Oak, on Lansdowne.

Approximate damage to Mr. Bayington's car was $300 and to the other car, $150.

An English car driven by William H. Smith, 430 Williams Street, traveling south on Tillamook Road, drove off the road and was in a collision with car, owned by Robert Ruddock, 1759 Hampshire.

Approximate damage to Mr. Smith's car was $200 and to Mr. Ruddock's car was $35.

City police Wednesday evening took Audrey Turner, aged 12, of 1421 Gladstone, to Jubilee Hospital after an accident on her bicycle.

She suffered from an injured right hip and bumps on her forehead, but was sent home after treatment.

Canadian Officer Lauds Beagling As Training for War

OTTAWA (CP)—It has been said, as every schoolboy knows, that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton.

Canadian schoolboys, in years hence, may be taught that victories of the Canadian army were won on the hunting fields of Camp Borden.

At least, that is the tongue-in-cheek thesis of an army officer who manages a pack of 12 beagles during his spare time as a physical education instructor at Camp Borden's school of infantry.

It must be added that the hounds are not on the army payroll. They were purchased in England by a group of Canadian officers for recreation purposes. Their upkeep is paid by the officer-owner.

Writing in the Canadian Army Journal, Capt. J. A. Gillanders of the Royal Canadian Regiment, argues the case of beagling as an aid to infantry training.

In his historical notes leading up to his main argument, Captain Gillanders, who entertains his article, "Beagling As Training For War," notes that Edward VII sent 24 beagles to Lord Kitchener in South Africa where they were to be used as a means of exercising chairborne officers in Pretoria.

Let Captain Gillanders take it from here:

"Many of the principles of war are equally applicable to beagling and to follow hounds with an degree of success demands the same qualities that are demanded of the present day soldier."

"Perhaps the most important of the follower's duties is that of remaining silent. Nothing can be more distracting to hounds working out a line than a lot of idle chatter or yells of encouragement. . . . No one means loss of surprise and consequently a direct violation of one of the most important principles of war."

A cap raised in the air then pointed in the direction taken by a hunted hare will provide the same information to a huntsman that a rifle held in the air and pointed in the direction of the enemy conveys to a platoon or section commander."

"Clarity of thought and fluency of expression can be developed with all the accompanying excitement of the chase without, in the event of error, the dire consequences of battle."

"To an observant follower, a hunted hare will frequently provide outstanding examples of the use of camouflage which, with little difficulty, could well be adopted for training purposes. . . .

"Beagling demands physical fitness, endurance, dash, initiative and personal discipline. . . .

"The soldier who aspires to be an NCO or the NCO seeking a commission, can do no better in the furtherance of his aim than to spend his spare time following a pack of beagles at every opportunity available."

Varied Sights Await Queen, Duke on Tour

BY RICK STEVENS

SYDNEY (Reuters).—When the 15,002-ton liner Gothic, carrying the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, streams through "the heads" of Sydney Harbor February 3, she will be bringing here the first reigning monarch ever to visit Australia.

The Royal visitors' first glimpse of the Dominion-continents will be a panorama of beautiful bays, attractive headlands, and houses and gardens clustered around the foreshore.

On the shores of this harbor, the forefathers of today's Australians founded the first settlement a century and a half ago. Here, too, convicts from Britain once raised an exile.

Many of Sydney's 1,620,000 people will crowd the miles of foreshore to watch the Royal ship steam down the harbor, escorted by vessels of the Royal Australian Navy.

The Gothic will drop anchor at Farm Cove, so named because there the first farm was established in Australia in 1788 and the Queen and Duke will transfer to the Royal barge for an official reception, headed by Governor-General Field Marshal Sir William Slim and Prime Minister Robert Menzies. That will mark the beginning of a tour of Australia which will take the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh more than 12,500 miles before they leave Fremantle April 1.

They will visit 50 or more country places in addition to the larger cities: Sydney; Melbourne; Brisbane, "city of seven hills"; Adelaide, known here as "the city of churches"; Hobart, second oldest of the Australian state capitals; Perth, on Australia's west coast.

Traveling by air, the Queen will be able to see much of the outback of this "brown continent" with its thriving provincial cities and "bush" towns.

These visits will bring the Queen and the Duke in contact with aboriginal place names such as Wagga-Wagga, meaning "many crows," and Benalla, "a musk duck."

The Queen will open the Australian federal parliament and several state parliaments.

Outside the whirl of official receptions, banquets and garden parties, the Royal visitors will also have the opportunity to meet some "dinky-di" Australians—the furry, snub-nosed koala, bear, the platypus and the kangaroo.

They will see, too, the Australian bushland, with its gum trees, golden wattle and plant life.

During the 58 days of her tour, the Queen will have only five days free from engagements. There will be others when she is free for an evening, or half a day.

Some newspapers here have been calling for an eleventh hour revision of what they describe as the "split second" tour program. They say the itinerary will impose too heavy a strain on the Queen and spoil the pleasure of her visit.

Newspaper criticism began after a statement by the director of the Royal tour organization, Lt.-Gen. F. H. Berryman, that timing for the program was so precise that it took into account the number of seconds which the Queen would take to walk down the ramp from the Royal aircraft to the ground.

Gen. Berryman, in reply, said he used the phrase "split second" timing to illustrate "the kind of efficiency we must have in our organization—not the kind of schedule it would be presumptuous to impose upon the Royal party."

Asthma Relieved

BALTIMORE (AP)—A new treatment for bronchial asthma—described as "apparently the easiest, safest, least expensive and highest producer of satisfactory results"—was announced Wednesday.

Dr. Charles F. Geschickter of Georgetown University Medical Center said the key to the new treatment is a synthetic chemical born of research to produce new weapons against malaria.

He told the Maryland Academy of General Practice that the substance never was employed as an anti-malarial substance.

But he said Georgetown research had shown that incorporation of a special anti-histamine drug into the substance's chemical structure provided a new means of attacking bronchial asthma—giving complete relief up to periods of four years even after treatment is stopped.

In the treatment of 285 cases, involving 155 children, 50 young adults and 80 adults over 40 years of age, he said there were only 2 1/2 per cent failures in the first group; five per cent in the second and 10 per cent in the third.

All had failed to respond to previous treatments.

forward of amidships and listing about 15 degrees, was towed to Quebec. She was expected to enter drydock at Lauzon, across the St. Lawrence from here for repairs. The Stugard, damaged in the bow, continued her trip to Montreal.

When the liner returned to harbor, divers went down to free the mooring lines from the propellers. She was expected to sail later.

The liner carried replacement troops for service with the 27th Canadian Brigade in Germany.

Murdered Girl's Note Pledged Eternal Love

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP)—A letter written, but never mailed, by Marie Anne Carrier before she was brutally murdered, pledged her love to a second lieutenant but said she could never marry him, it was learned Wednesday.

The army officer, Peter Balcombe, of London, Ont., is charged with the murder of the attractive reserve sergeant in the Canadian Women's Army Corps from Blenheim, Que. He appeared in court Wednesday and was remanded a week without bail.

The letter, reported in the possession of police, rejected Balcombe's proposal that he get a divorce from his wife so that they could be married.

The letter was reported to say in effect: "I love you, but can never marry you and shall remain single for the rest of my life."

The letter was the latest clue in the case which started a large-scale investigation by Ontario and Quebec police since the nude, knife-tipped body was found in a ditch near Ingersoll, 35 miles west of here, last Thursday.

At his arraignment, the 24-year-old officer kept looking around at the crowd in the courtroom—and his mouth twitched nervously.

Meanwhile at Lewis, Que., an estimated 8,000 persons filed past the casket of Miss Carrier, who was dressed in her army uniform.

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters).—The Japanese tanker Eiho Maru, carrying 16,000 tons of crude oil, was aground in dense fog for three hours Wednesday on a rock opposite the entrance to the docks here. Twelve tugs pushed the vessel off the rock at the morning high tide. She is the first tanker flying the Japanese flag to unload oil in the River Mersey.

APLICATION by the Canadian Pacific Railway for the acceptance of a new rate base composed of the net investment in the railroad, including past federal grants, and a new rate structure which would yield a perpetual 6 per cent return on that is as close an approach to the cost-plus contract as has ever been asked of the federal transport board. Not only would such a ruling, which would have to carry with it equivalent earnings for the Canadian National Railway, mean a further high boost in rail tariffs which already cost Canadian business close to $1,000,000,000 a year, but also it would absolve the railways from the obligation of balanced and controlled cost operation in the first place.

The counter plea on the part of eight of the ten provinces in Canada opposing any further increase in rail rates and contesting the means by which they have been brought to the present level, that rail imposts had reached the saturation point, is one that will need no explanation across the country for those who have to ship goods under today's conditions. As the provinces were already resisting the 9 per cent increase on current rail freight rates sought by the same applicant there is little doubt that they will contest the new proposals with determination.

In effect the transport board is being asked to devise a rate structure which would assure to the two transcontinental rail carriers an income in perpetuity higher than anything they have yet known in their combined experience. If the CPR were permitted a guaranteed 6 per cent on its net investment, some formula equivalent in result though different in form would have to be made available to the CNR. Since no country could possibly guarantee a fixed return on an unchanging, set base, regardless of the times and changing world conditions, any attempt to do so by tariff manipulation could only fail. Canadian rail returns can no more be separated from Canadian rail costs than locomotives can operate without rails.

Abstention Cannot Be One-Sided

A PAPAL urge to medical men to withhold their skills from the realms of atomic, bacteriological and chemical warfare raises a question that has frequently been debated. Scientists claim their work is abstract in character, that the uses their discoveries are put to are not their responsibility, and in effect that they are innocent parties to the destructive application of scientific research. The opposite view is simply that if scientists did not cooperate in making of such things as an atomic bomb, which could not be made without their supervision, then weapons of this kind would not exist.

The Pope qualified his comment by excepting the participation of medical men in scientific warfare when it was a matter of unavoidable self-defense. This of course alters the picture. The build-up of atomic bomb piles and the development of scientific instruments of war, insofar as the west is concerned, is for defensive purposes only.

Russia no doubt would make the same claim, however, and unless both sides could agree with honesty and suitable guarantees not to apply science to warfare there seems no alternative to the present disturbing armament race.

Only this week in Victoria, for instance, Dr. G. M. Shrum, head of the department of physics at UBC, expressed the opinion that Russia was two or three years ahead of the west in atomic development. While this is at present assumption security alone dictates that western scientists should place their knowledge and skills at the disposal of their own nations. It is most unlikely that if such a papal request were acted upon it would be matched by similar action on the part of Russian scientists. This leaves western science no choice; it would be fatal to abstain while a potential enemy was pursuing the means of scientific warfare to the utmost limit.

Floats for Inner Harbor

IT is good to see that discussions between the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the city council's public works committee have resulted in revival of active interest in plans to provide visitors' floats in the Inner Harbor. This well-intentioned project has had several setbacks since the city voted $5,000 for it last year, none of them attributable to lack of enthusiasm on the council's part.

Negotiations with the department of transport, besides causing long delays, have done nothing to encourage the city to undertake improvement of facilities which really are a federal responsibility. The department, which has jurisdiction over the harbor and anything put there, not only refused to approve the city's original building plans for new floats but also declined to assist financially. That lack of co-operation suggests that the department has not comprehended the need for extended accommodation. This is more than a matter of visitors' comfort and protection. It is necessary to enable them to comply with the Dominion's own shipping and immigration laws on entering foreign waters. As a major customs entry point Victoria is poorly equipped in this regard, and must create a most unfavorable impression on strangers. It is small wonder that more and more cruising yachtsmen are choosing other clearance ports in preference to Victoria.

If the Dominion government will not share responsibility for improvement, the city in its own interests is wise not to abandon the project. This, too, is the time to get ahead with it, so that the floats may be ready before another cruising season arrives.

LITTLE BOY BACK

Sir,—May we through the Colonist extend our deepest thanks to our friends and neighbors, the police, army and navy, newspapers and radio stations and all others who gave so freely of their time and effort to search for Richie Poole, during his disappearance. It was a heart-warming reassurance during an anxious time. Thank you.

Sir,—I, George Frederick Kinch, chief petty officer, RCN, have no connection with the George Kinch, 280 Burnside, recently in police court on an impaired driving charge.

GEORGE F. KINCH,

INTEREST IN SCHOOLS

Sir,—May I, as a representative to the Sooke School District from the Colwood Attendance Area, ask for space? During late October and early November meetings of ratepayers in all attendance areas of the school district will be held. In past years attendance at these meetings has been, to say the least, deplorable. It is to me incredible that so few people are interested in an accounting of their tax dollars and in the stewardship of the representatives and trustees who transact their business. During the past year all of three people have phoned me on matters pertaining to the school board.

Since education is a subject so much in the public eye and educational finance a matter of great interest to all taxpayers it is not sufficient to gasp and protest on receiving the yearly tax notice. Of course one must eventually pay it—or else. But the responsibility does not rest there. We owe it to ourselves, to our families and to our neighbors, here and throughout B.C., to find out how that money is spent and why.

And so I throw out to all ratepayers of Sooke School District No. 62, and in particular to those of the Colwood Attendance Area (meeting October 19, Colwood School), a challenge. Your trustees have, without remuneration and personal interests, served you, some of them for years. Can you not attend one meeting in a year?

ISABELLE READER,

LOCAL ENTERPRISE

Sir,—Let us analyze the situation now that the untimely end of the Totem Theatre has been stayed, temporarily at least and I hope for a long time. Like a human body the Totem Theatre cannot survive without food and that food is supplied by our attendance each night. Now let us not forget that the food, which we supply, does not all go into the Totem body. The Totem Theatre is a business and a B.C. enterprise, therefore worthy of support from Victoria.

Many B.C. industries are represented in the presentation of a play at the Totem. To name a few, we have the lumber industry in the construction of scenery; the printing business in programs, tickets and advertising; the electric company and even our own government, which is actually ourselves and employs many local citizens, benefits through the collection of amusement taxes.

Theatre hours are long and weary. Many tiresome hours are put in learning lines and rehearsing before a play is presented on stage. So let us remember in attending a performance at the Totem that we are not only paying for an evening's entertainment and I really believe it equals anything in Victoria but also supporting home enterprise and in so doing helping to build a greater British Columbia.

E. L. HALLIDAY,

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings?

By TOM TAYLOR

I SHOULD have changed my name long ago and then, perhaps, I would not have so many doubts.

For example: I saw by the paper three weeks ago that I was travelling up the Island Highway one afternoon, and actually my nose was glued to my office desk. I saw by the paper two weeks ago that I reported something to the police and I haven't spoken to a policeman for several months. 'Twas some other T.T. on each occasion. I suppose I should have written a letter to the editor, one of those little notes that says, coldly: "Sir: Please be informed that I am not the Thomas Taylor reported in your newspaper, to be..."

But what's the use? This sort of thing is nothing new, it has pursued me periodically for ages. I remember once my ears being shocked as a voice over the telephone commanded me to come down at once and pay for a suit. I never ordered, never wore, never even saw. I remember, too, a doctor sending me a bill, at my office, for professional services never rendered, at consulting rooms I never heard of.

'Twas some other T.T. I hope you'll believe, on each occasion. Another time the public prints carried the news that a Thomas Taylor had been sent to prison for stealing a horse. I didn't disappear from my usual haunts, but my friends gave me funny looks nevertheless. The situation could be worse, I shall admit. My name could be Mar-duce Taylor, a diverting combination. Indeed, it could be Robinson Crusoe-Christopher Columbus Taylor, an even queerer prefix, yet one which was once foisted on a boy named Smith. It might have been Buffalo Bill Taylor or Horatio Herbert Kitchener Taylor; were I being baptized now it might be Panmunjom Peace Taylor, who knows.

Instead, however, it is plain Thomas Taylor, unadorned. Thomas, I believe, means a twin, hence no doubt those newspaper reports to which I have referred. But I am not plural. Neither, as you see, am I uncommon.

The strange thing is most members of the human family are graced with middle names that add distinction; but I am bereft. I meant to cure this anomaly, quite some time ago. By deed poll, I once decided, I would adopt a middle name and thus avoid those other Thomas Taylors who steal horses and don't pay their bills. I even picked the name out.

It was to be Monteith, a name to which I have some claim; I would henceforth call myself T. Monteith Taylor. Now there is a distinguished patronym for you. And then, I thought, after I had lived in Oak Bay for three years I would hyphenate it! Alas, I let the chance slip, and now, without volition of my own, I find myself consorting with horses and policemen.

Ah well. T. Monteith-Taylor would look rather stuffy at the top of this column, don't you think?

Reports from Ottawa

THE appointment of former Commons speaker W. Ross Macdonald as government leader in the Senate, and his elevation to cabinet rank, could presage action to save the Upper House from total eclipse as a power in national affairs.

Macdonald is a forceful personality for all his mildness of manner. He's highly popular, easy to get along with, yet he has a knack for getting things done. Like the installation of a sound reinforcement system in the Commons chamber. Successful governments and speakers kicked that idea around for 21 years before Macdonald took office and got action.

His predecessor as Senate leader, Wishart Robertson, who now becomes speaker of the Senate, largely failed in his efforts to enhance the value of the Red Chamber. Robertson's idea was to find new tasks, and thereby a new usefulness, for the Senate. But after several Senate investigations into various phases of public affairs, the plan rather petered out.

Macdonald, fresh from presiding over the more potent Commons, should be able to make a clear, unprejudiced assessment of what is wrong with the Senate. With his experience in the Lower House he'll be able to look past the obvious, such as the preponderance of government supporters, to assess the more basic reasons for the Senate's decline.

The lanky lawyer from Brantford, Ont., has something else, too, in greater measure than Robertson had. That is Prime Minister St. Laurent's confidence. At a testimonial dinner for the speaker at Brantford last January, the PM described Macdonald as "one of my very dear friends," an MP who was "efficient and conscientious," and possessing "personality, tact, dignity and ability"—all in all, St. Laurent said, "a great citizen."

The PM unquestionably realizes something must be done about the Senate, and soon. Action before the election wasn't politically feasible. It could be now. And who better than the person he has described in such glowing terms to advise him as to the course of action required?

Indeed, this closeness between the two men, one a Scots-Canadian Protestant and the other a French-Canadian Catholic, could make Cabinet Minister Macdonald a most influential member of the government. He could succeed former Fisheries Minister Mayhew, now ambassador in far-off Japan, as the PM's cabinet confidant.

The speaker-designate of the Commons is 41-year-old Rene Beaudoin of Montreal, who only a half dozen years ago was a young-man-in-a-hurry occupying one of the back benches on the government side.

It was a surfeit of cabinet timber in the Montreal area which pointed Beaudoin towards the speakership. There were too many ahead of him, and he was foiled in his ambition to become a cabinet minister.

Even a parliamentary assistantship evaded him. Six years ago he would eagerly question newspapermen on every rumor that the PM was about to appoint P.A.s. But no P.A. appointment ever bore the Beaudoin tag. At one point he had made up his mind to quit politics if his abilities weren't quickly recognized by promotion.

His positive attitude paid off, as it has for others. Jim Sinclair and Bob Winters both threatened to quit if they didn't get promotions. Now they're cabinet ministers.

Balance of Nature

(From The Ottawa Journal)

FRIENDS from the West tell us that a modern coyote, slinking over the plain, will feel in his nostrils an intoxicating odor impossible to resist. His natural caution forgotten, he will find and snatch at a choice morsel. Then the bomb inside blows his head off and justice has been done.

So far so good. The coyote is a pest, a killer, a disturber of the night with unmusical wails, a crafty avoider of traps who can tell the calibre of a rifle carried by a man a mile away.

But this is not the end of the story. Our friends told us of the brilliance of the scientists who devised the wonderful gopher bait and the explosive inside it. Then they started to mourn. Having killed their coyotes, they found the gophers on their farms increased and multiplied beyond all previous knowledge.

Having upset the balance of nature they now attempt to strike another balance. They have figured out that 35 gophers will eat as much as a cow in a summer and when they see a crop of 100 gophers to an acre they begin to wonder if it wouldn't be better to have the coyotes back, complete with heads.

A woman reported the disappearance of her husband to the police. "Is there any message you wish to give your husband if we find him?" asked the sergeant.

A Kentucky colonel always closed his eyes when he took a drink. One day someone asked him why. "The sight of good likkah, suh," the colonel drawled, "always makes mah mouth watah... and Ah do not care to dilute mah drink."

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

THE true and secret purpose of contemporary art may be to inform everybody that anybody can paint, play music, sculpture and engage in any-of-the-arts. Who can look at the average contemporary abstract painting and not say: "I could do that?"

Recently, CBC had a very distinguished musician and composer on the air, two Wednesdays in succession, playing some of his recent compositions. In my house, the effect was ludicrous. From upstairs, one member of the family who was trying to study, shouted down in all seriousness: "Get that cat off the piano!" And he had to come downstairs and see for himself that it was not the cat walking up and down the keyboard. My own impression was that Tommy Tweed, the actor with the whiskers, was perpetrating a hoax on the highbrow Wednesday night program. And I had to verify from CBC itself that the performer was indeed one of the foremost composers and artists in the contemporary field of music.

For the full period of the program, the gentleman did one finger, two-hand pieces that sounded to the trained ear of the listener like idle, formless and random poking at the keys. I say trained ear deliberately, because now millions of ears are trained to expect certain sounds known as music. Music has a far vaster public than ever before in its history, and it has its rights, surely.

When the professor's recital was over, I went to our piano, announced a mysterious and formless title and then one-fingered around the keyboard in what seemed to me as good a performance as the professor's. My family applauded me and remarked: "You should be grateful to the professor for trying to show you you are perfectly able to play the piano."

Chopsticks having been my sole repertoire after half a century, all I have to do now is find the right intellectual company, and launch into a new and wonderful career. Should we stop feeling about contemporary art in all its forms, and just go ahead with musical instruments, paints, canvas, wire, plaster, concocting? Is the message of contemporary art: "It is better to do anything than nothing?"

O Parthenon!

Churchill The Realist

By RAYMOND MOLEY
From New York

WHATEVER may be the infirmities of a body from which too much has been expected over many years, there is nothing wrong with Sir Winston Churchill's mind. His speech at the Conservative Party's conference at Margate was not only a stimulating call to party action, but one of the best statements of the Conservative faith that we have heard in recent years.

The part of the speech that dealt with foreign policy monopolized the headlines, coming as it did at a meeting when the American public is disturbed by the confusion of voices in Washington regarding the H-bomb and our defenses against it. But two-thirds of the speech dealt with domestic policy and with the gains made by Britain since the Attlee government fell in 1951.

Those who say cynically that the Conservative Party has adopted most of the social and economic reforms advocated by the Socialists should read this speech with care. They will see, if they do so, that a wide chasm of principle still separates the two parties. True, the Conservatives have accepted social "insurance" in most of its aspects. But, except for free medical service, these were inherited not from the Socialists, but from the Lloyd-George Liberals. They have accepted the responsibility of building houses through government enterprise. But that is a condition forced upon any government after the decay and devastation of wars and preparation therefor.

Another compromise is a limited participation in the food market. Owing to many factors, largely the war and the Socialist effort to prolong war controls, there is still a food ministry and a limited and declining process of buying and distributing food. Agriculture is assisted and controlled to a degree somewhat more than in the United States. But interference with the free market in agriculture is based upon the same factor that influences the American market—the fluctuation of world prices.

The Conservative faith as stated by the prime minister is simple. It holds with "free and flexible working of the laws of supply and demand," limited only by the responsibility of the state to prevent disaster, individual or national.

This is a faith to stand by and to measure every act of government. It is much more robust and meaningful than some of our statesmen's definition of their faith in mere freedom. We need also to know what we are free from and what limits we shall put upon ourselves. Mere freedom is an ideological vacuum.

School Board Plans By-Law Campaign

A concentrated publicity program for the forthcoming school building by-law campaign has been initiated by the Greater Victoria School Board.

Teachers have been organized into committees to prepare press releases, radio announcements and poster designs.

It is the intent of the campaign to present the facts and let the people make up their own minds, chairman Richard

The campaign will be directed to get out the vote and PTA help will be sought.

Several of the Sunday PTA radio programs are being devoted to the by-law question.

Game Spreads Gospel

"Basketball evangelism" was described by Rev. Russell Killman, who spoke at Central Baptist Church Wednesday.

Mr. Killman has recently returned from Formosa where he was engaged in missionary work for the Orient Crusade, an inter-denominational religious group.

A basketball team of missionaries visited Formosa, he said, with Don Odie of Taylor University as coach. The team played 79 games before 250,000 fans.

At half time and at the end of each game the players preached and sang hymns, he said.

Helping Mr. Killman in Formosa was Dick Hillis of Victoria, who was previously in China with his brother Don. When both brothers were chased out by the Communists, Don went to India and Dick to Formosa.

Missionary work was largely among the Chinese soldiers, he said.

A nine-month bible study course in Formosa was attended in three years by 100,000 Formosans, Mr. Killman said.

The plan is to get the Nationalists to do the missionary work in Formosa and then in China, Mr. Killman said.

Mr. Killman will speak at noon Thursday at Victoria College and at noon Friday at Mount Douglas High School.

Co-ordination Essential Factor In Good Office Management

Co-ordination is a thread that must run through any successful business organization, but it can only be realized by every one in a management position doing his part.

This view was expressed Wednesday night by Prof. E. D. McPhee, head of the school of commerce at UBC, in an address to the Victoria branch of the National Office Management Association. Among the aids to co-ordination he outlined were "face-to-face" meetings for the sake of communication, making a start on co-ordination in the early stages of any development, and easy flowing "working papers."

with the idea that regular standing committees are an aid to co-ordination. Executives, in the regular course of their duties, should do the work which would be done by such committees, he said.

Professor McPhee was introduced by R. H. Heywood, association vice-president, and senior executives in organizational procedures, conflict in policy on various levels, and lack of communication from the top down.

Among the aids to co-ordination he outlined were "face-to-face" meetings for the sake of communication, making a start on co-ordination in the early stages of any development, and easy flowing "working papers."

Professor McPhee listed a number of obstacles to co-ordination in business: a tendency to create too many departments, a poor definition of responsibilities attached to various management posts, intervention of

Rites on Thursday For Mrs. C. Mitchell

Private funeral services will be held on Thursday for Mrs. Catherine Mitchell, 56, founder and active member of the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island.

Mrs. Mitchell died Monday at her home at 2171 Granite Street, wife of Dr. W. E. Mitchell.

she organized the society for helping men released from prison in 1936 and for many years devoted her time to the society's voluntary case work. She was president of the society for four years, giving up the post only last year.

FROM NEW ZEALAND

Born in New Zealand, she was married in London, England, in 1922, and came to Victoria with her husband in 1929. During the depression of the 1930's she helped unemployed who could not get help elsewhere.

Her views on drug addiction and penal reform, formulated after close study, won her wide recognition and she was invited frequently to address local groups and was offered top post in a rehabilitation institution set up by the New Zealand government, an offer she declined.

Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Dr. P. A. M. van der Esch, an historian, now in Victoria, whose home is in Paris and two grandchildren.

Episode in Serial Too Real to Last

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—An episode in a radio serial has been withdrawn in New Zealand as a sequel to mutilation of paintings in the Auckland Art Gallery.

In the episode, a reporter, masquerading as a member of a gang seeking to spread racial intolerance, was given instructions to go to a private gallery and damage pictures of colored people. He did not do so, but it is thought the idea may have stuck in the mind of a child listener.

EYES PIERCED

Next day after a visit to the art gallery by parties of school children it was found that the eyes of seven valuable historical portraits of Maori chiefs had been pierced, probably with a pencil. A slash was made in another picture, apparently with a pocket knife.

W. B. Yates, director of broadcasting, announcing that the episode had been withdrawn and would not be broadcast from other stations in the national network, said the series had been played to various audiences

Bruce Waugh Ends Service

OTTAWA (CP)—Bruce Waugh, the man who put Canada on the maps, retired last month as surveyor general of Dominion lands.

He joined the government service in 1909 when 119 field survey parties were on the Prairies recording the subdivision of new lands.

He leaves now at 65 with vast areas completely covered by means of mapping from air surveys.

Mr. Waugh himself designed and compiled the first air-strip map nearly 25 years ago. It covered a strip 80 miles wide between Winnipeg and Lethbridge. The map was intended primarily to help pilots, but it came in useful again a few years ago for planning that stretch of the Trans-Canada Highway.

PROGRAM STARTED

It was in 1938 that Mr. Waugh launched his program for eight-mile-to-one-inch aerial charts of southern Canada. The war gave impetus to the work, and by 1944 219

At the University of Toronto Mr. Waugh studied electrical engineering as well as surveying, and the combined knowledge helped in the development of the radar altimeter, an airborne instrument for recording contours, which was carried out under his direction.

He became surveyor general of Dominion lands in 1948. Mr. Waugh was born at Seaforth, Ontario. In retirement he and his wife, his companion on some rugged field surveys, will spend their summers at Ottawa and their winters in the south.

Hunting Report

New Seasons Open—Prospects Look Good

BY DOUG PEDEN

Saturday's opening of hunting seasons on cock pheasants, willow-truffed grouse, ducks, geese, Wilson's snipe and coots will give Vancouver Island hunters a wide choice of targets when they seek their shooting pleasure over the week end.

With blue grouse and deer this year and reports indicate that they should also find a good supply of the new featured targets, especially ducks, when shooting gets under way Saturday. Pheasants, which remain in season until November 22, benefitting from a mild winter and fair nesting conditions in most localities, are reported to have increased slightly from last year. Hunters, allowed two cock birds each day and 10 over the season, must attach a pheasant tag to a leg of each of their birds.

In the district of North Saanich and the municipality of Central Saanich only, hunters will be allowed to include one hen pheasant in their daily bag limit of two birds from November 7 until the end of the season, according to an order in council passed after game regulations pamphlets had been issued. Late regulations also allow the shooting of California quail in North Saanich and Central Saanich from Saturday until the last day of October. The limit on the plump little speedsters is four daily and 24 for the season.

Willow grouse, which have been noticed feeding around alder trees in the past two weeks, remain legal game until November 15. The ruffed grouse, sporty targets in their habitual thick cover, are in good numbers and should supply many two-per-day limits. The season bag limit is 24.

However, willows must be counted in the daily aggregate limit for grouse, which is six, either all blue grouse or made up of the two species.

Ducks nesting west of the Rocky Mountains did well this year and sportsmen can look for an increase over 1952. Although there has been no appreciable cold weather, the migrating waterfowl are already arriving in island waters with Cowichan Bay harboring several large flocks. Each hunter may take eight ducks per day, one of which may be a wood duck, and is allowed 100 before the season closes January 11.

Geese, which are not expected to be encountered in readily accessible areas, are also legal game until January 11 with bag limits of five daily and 25 for the season.

Wilson's snipe, with a limit of eight per day, may be taken until November 22 while 25 coots may be bagged each day by a hunter and 150 allowed before the season goes out on January 11.

Hunters are reminded that the municipality of Saanich is now closed entirely to shooting and that special permit must be obtained before hunting in Central Saanich.

In order to obtain permission to shoot in Central Saanich, sportsmen are required to get signed notes from land owners or tenants of the property they will be hunting and present these with their hunting license at the municipal office at Saanichton. Officials say they will then issue a permit entitling the hunter to shoot over the area specified.

The settled area around Brentwood, bounded by Stelly's Crossroad on the north, West Saanich Road, Benvenuto Avenue and the waterfront, is closed altogether.

Saanich police say they will make no exceptions in cases of persons apprehended while shooting within municipal boundaries. Signs marking the boundaries are expected to be posted on main roads.

Short Shots—Victoria sportsmen will be sorry to learn that Bruce Winsby, Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association secretary for several years, has moved to Vancouver. Winsby was behind movement to obtain open seasons on hen pheasants and quail in Saanich areas. Colonel cameraman Bud Kinsman, on a short holiday with Ted Harris at Cy Long's Cariboo Chalet at Deka Lake, knocked over a two-year-old bull moose after only six hours' hunting. The trip was mainly for bird hunting and the one hunt for moose was made without benefit of a guide. A booklet issued by the B.C. Forest Service discloses that it took an average of 20 days' hunting for a hunter to bag a moose in the Cariboo last year whereas, in Wells Gray Park, visited by 828 hunters, the average was slightly more than 12 days. Tom Zaccarelli is $30 richer after collecting the bounty on a young cougar he shot last Sunday at Copper Canyon in the Hillcrest area.

Manager of Year Title Now a Stengel Monopoly

BY JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel, only manager ever to pilot a team to five consecutive world championships, Wednesday was named manager of the year for the second straight time and fourth time in the last five years.

It was practically no contest as the 64-year-old skipper of the New York Yankees drew 107 of the 179 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in the annual Associated Press poll.

Stengel first won the poll in 1949 and repeated in 1950 and 1952. He easily netted more votes than the combined total of the 15 other managers.

SPLENDID JOB Charlie Grimm, who did a splendid job steering the Milwaukee Braves to second place in the National League pennant race, was runner-up. Grimm received 30 votes, six more than Charlie Dressen, who placed third. Dressen was released by Brooklyn despite leading the Dodgers to two successive National League pennants.

Paul Richards, who directed Chicago White Sox into third place in the American League, was fourth. He was named on 10 ballots. Lou Boudreau, who did a splendid job piloting a rookie-dominated Boston Red Sox team into fourth place, received four votes.

Single votes went to Al Lopez, Eddie Stanky and Rogers Hornsby. Lopez landed the Cleveland Indians in second place for the third straight year. Stanky, in his second season as manager of St. Louis Cardinals, duplicated his third place finish of 1952. Hornsby, after leading Cincinnati Redlegs into sixth place, was released before the end of the season.

Stengel brought home a fifth straight pennant despite the absence of a single 20-game winner or regular batter who hit higher than .308.

Remember When: Harry Greb, the "Pittsburgh Windmill," died at Atlantic City 27 years ago today following a minor operation. He was world's lightweight champion in 1922, and from 1923 to 1926 held the world's middleweight boxing crown, being succeeded by Tiger Flowers.

Shown above visiting his sick wife in Long Island, New York hospital is Chuck Dressen, now ex-manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Dressen, who refused to sign one-year contract and quit club he had led to two successive National League pennants, is now manager and part owner of Oakland club of Pacific Coast League. "We're in this together," Dressen said, referring to four-page letter he and Mrs. Dressen had sent to Dodgers outlining Dressen's stand.

O.C. University Star Signs With United XI

Victoria United, tied with Dominion-champion Royals at Royal Athletic Park Saturday afternoon.

United manager George Eade announced Wednesday the signing of 27-year-old Hector McIntyre, who arrived in Canada two months ago and has been in Victoria less than two weeks. Born in Detroit of Scottish parents, McIntyre attended school and university in Liverpool.

Playing at inside-left, McIntyre captained the University of Liverpool soccer team for three years and was once named captain of a combined English University side. During his career he has earned seven university international caps and three inter-league caps.

Coach Wally Milligan, after watching the newcomer in practice, will probably start him at inside-left Saturday in place of Bill McMillan, who was forced out of last Saturday's game with a pulled leg muscle.

GOOD CREDENTIALS Centre-forward Tommy Druce is expected to be back in action after missing two games while fullback Joe Robbins, sidelined with an ankle injury as United dropped a 3-0 decision to league-leading North Shore at Vancouver last Saturday, is a possible starter.

CLUBS FINED $15 Eade also announced his club had been fined $15 for playing Tim Walker, a signed player, against Firefighters a week ago last Saturday after leaving his name off the list of players. Firefighters protested their 2-1 loss and the fine was the decision of league officials.

At the same time, New Westminster Royals also were fined $15 for using five spares in one game. Only three are permitted.

Order Moore To Defend By Christmas NEW YORK (AP)—Boxing's joint board of review Wednesday told light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore to defend his crown by December 24 against "somebody," but preferably Harold Johnson, the No. 1 contender from Philadelphia.

Moore successfully defended his title June 24 when he outpointed Joey Maxim, from whom he won the championship. His six months of non-title grace expire December 24. Charlie Johnson, Moore's manager, told the board that he has never received an offer for a Johnson-Moore fight. Moore won three out of four fights with Johnson before he won the title.

"We're willing to fight Johnson or anyone else if someone will guarantee us $100,000," said Johnson.

NAVAL EPIC The first revolving naval gun turret was used on the gunboat Monitor to defeat the Confederate ship Merrimack in 1862.

CAHA Blasted Over Trophy By Maritimes GLACE BAY, N.S. (CPL)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's action of taking back the Alexander Trophy appears to be a "deliberate attempt" to force the Maritime Major Hockey League to withdraw from CAHA competition, C. Roy MacDonald, MMHL president said Wednesday night.

"It looks like the CAHA is trying to do the same thing to us as they did to the Quebec Senior Hockey League—get out," he said.

The trophy, won last year by Halifax Atlantics and emblematic of the major semi-professional hockey championship of Canada, was withdrawn because of lack of competitors.

Speaking Briefly

Jockey Willie Shoemaker brought in three more winners at Golden Gate Fields Wednesday to boost his world record to 397 in a year.

Notre Dame, the United States top-ranked team, has been made a seven-point favorite to defeat fourth-ranked Georgia Tech Saturday and snap college football's longest current losing string at 31.

Charlie Grimm, who managed the surprising Milwaukee Braves to a second-place finish, was named National League manager of the year by United Press Wednesday.

Bruce Edwards, former Brooklyn catcher who managed Des Moines of the Western League this season, will return to the major leagues next season as a third baseman for Chicago Cubs.

Tom Fool, heavy favorite to win the Pimlico Special Saturday, checked in at Baltimore.

New York Giants racked up their fourth straight exhibition baseball win Wednesday by trouncing their Tokyo namesakes, 8-1, before an overflow crowd of 20,000 at Sapporo, Hokkaido.

The Big Four Football Union playoff will be a best-of-three series for the first time this season instead of a two-game, total-point series.

Work on the $300,000 British Empire Games swimming pool has begun in Vancouver at the University of British Columbia site.

C. V. Whitney's Fisherman won the $52,075 East View Stakes Wednesday at Jamaica while the odds-on favorite, Mr. Gus, finished out of the money.

Name Kithyra Co-Favorite For O.C. Race LONDON (AP)—Kithyra climbed into a co-favorite's spot alongside Jupiter for the Cambridge Stakes during an odds call-over Wednesday night. The horses to beat, the bookies say, rate odds of 100-8 against.

The Cambridgehire will be run over a mile and a furlong at old Newmarket, October 28. Hanging closely behind at 100-7 are Sailing Light, Wych Au Poor, Choir Boy and Sunny Brae. Choir Boy runs under the colors of Queen Elizabeth II, although he is not owned by royalty. The Queen holds Choir Boy under lease from the British National Stud.

Caerlaverock was seventh preferred at 22-1. Six 25-1 selections were Hilltop, Valdesco, King of the Tudors, Monty, Ocean Sailing and Prince Charmagne.

Twelve entries were not quoted at the call-over although they were included on the list of 36 final acceptances, Wednesday.

The next call-over will be Friday night.

Most of the fancied horses were well backed at the call-over. A lot of the big money went on Prince Charmagne who was backed to win $39,200 at 25-1. Before last Saturday he was a 33-1 offer.

English XI Gets Soccer Lesson But Draws on Disputed Penalty

(From AP and UP Reports) WEMBLEY, England—A controversial penalty goal in the last minute gave England a 1-1 draw with the International Football Federation "Rest of the World" team before 100,000 fans at Wembley Stadium Wednesday.

England preserved its record of never losing at home to a foreign soccer team.

The continentals held a 4-3 lead with a minute to go when Stan Mortenson, England inside forward, appeared to be tripped. Referee Bert Griffiths brushed aside wild protests from continental players that Mortenson had slipped and pointed to the penalty spot.

Fullback Alf Ramsey of Tottenham took the kick and calmly shot into the roof of the net to send England's finest soccer players to the shower with a fortunate tie.

England fell behind at the start and was never in the lead although managing to tie the score three times after being two goals down at one stage of the match.

The home team conceded a penalty as the result of fullback Bill Eckersley's tackle of Bernard Vukas of Yugoslavia. A minute later, England tied the score when Mortenson broke through the middle, shook off Gerhard Hanappi of Austria, and cracked a right-footed shot into the far corner of the net.

TWO FOR ITALY The visitors went ahead again at the 16-minute mark when Branko Zebec of Yugoslavia passed to Gian Boniperti of Italy, who scored from close in on a clever play. Boniperti made it 3-1 five minutes before half-time when he picked up the ball from his left wing position, broke past the defense and hit the right-hand corner of the net.

England got a lucky break a minute before the half and reduced the visitors' lead to 3-2 when forward Jimmy Mullen scored. Joaquin Navarro of Spain appeared to have plenty of time to clear the ball but decided to pass back. His kick was weak and Mullen slipped in to score.

Mullen, shooting from a sharp angle, made it 3-3 within the first three minutes of the second half but again the visitors took the lead when Billy Wright, the standout defender for the home booters, mis-kicked and Gunnar Nordahl of Sweden pounced on the ball to score from 20 yards out.

That set the stage for Ramsey's last-minute penalty kick.

Before the kickoff, both teams were received by Field

Marshal Viscount Montgomery. The English players wore their traditional white shirts and black shorts while the visitors wore light blue shirts and white shorts.

The lush turf was in top condition and the game was played in good weather. The sky was overcast but there was no wind.

MATTHEWS CHEERED The crowd gave 38-year-old Stanley Matthews a tremendous cheer when he trotted on the field. He was the only player in Wednesday's match who took part in the last England vs. "The World" match at Highbury in 1938, won by England, 3-0.

The lush turf was in top condition and the game was played in good weather. The sky was overcast but there was no wind.

MATTHEWS CHEERED The crowd gave 38-year-old Stanley Matthews a tremendous cheer when he trotted on the field. He was the only player in Wednesday's match who took part in the last England vs. "The World" match at Highbury in 1938, won by England, 3-0.

England got a lucky break a minute before the half and reduced the visitors' lead to 3-2 when forward Jimmy Mullen scored. Joaquin Navarro of Spain appeared to have plenty of time to clear the ball but decided to pass back. His kick was weak and Mullen slipped in to score.

Mullen, shooting from a sharp angle, made it 3-3 within the first three minutes of the second half but again the visitors took the lead when Billy Wright, the standout defender for the home booters, mis-kicked and Gunnar Nordahl of Sweden pounced on the ball to score from 20 yards out.

That set the stage for Ramsey's last-minute penalty kick.

U.S. Firms Cut Special Steel Prices

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

United States steel firms are busy cutting their prices on special items such as high alloy steels, and this may mark the end of the continent's long standing steel shortage.

The Canadian government, taking a line through the U.S. situation, has removed all restrictions on the exchange.

On New York Wednesday steel shares despite the news of cuts in premium prices continued to increase in the industrial section. This was due to Hiram Walker, Dominion Oil and Ogilvie Flour and payment of a quarterly dividend by Consolidated Paper. This company previously paid semi-annually.

There was no follow through in the New York buying and on Toronto the gold average gave up part of its gains.

The crippling strike in Ontario among gold miners is regarded as being a dampener on any immediate new gold interest on an international level.

Those companies manufacturing tools, mining and drilling equipment report that business has dragged almost to a standstill, indicating a slowing of the wheels of heavy industry at the source.

One firm with Canadian operations which manufactures such machinery as pumps, drills and other equipment for the mining industry, reported that business has dropped practically to nothing.

The automobile industry, the biggest consumer of steel, is reported to be in a similar position. The industry is reported to be in a similar position.

The total for the month, according to J. R. Timmins & Co. of Toronto is $36,763, the highest ever paid in the month of October.

Last month's figure was $31,210,311, and 1951's was $36,580,207.

The dividend total for the first 10 months of the year is $31,210,311, and 1951's was $36,580,207.

Store Sales Continue To Soar

OTTAWA (CP).—A $24,000,000 jump in Canadian retail store sales was reported by the Bureau of Statistics for the first eight months of 1953.

With all regions sharing in the general gain, sales during August rose 2.5 per cent to $1,014,000,000 from $989,260,000 last year.

This brought the eight-month total to a record $7,835,219,000, up 5.7 per cent from $7,411,725,000 last year.

Biggest gains during August were made by motor vehicle, furniture and building materials distributors. Coal and wood dealers and men's clothing stores showed declines.

Demand Strong, Copper Rises

NEW YORK (CP).—Custom smelter interests this week have boosted the price of copper 1 cent to 29 1/2 cents a pound.

The revision of last week's strength of the London market and a better domestic demand for October-November deliveries.

Lending product interests continued to hold to their basis of 30 cents a pound.

Prices in the London market on an upgrade for several weeks sold about 70 1/2 cents a pound for spot metal.

Trade sources indicated a temporary shortage of spot copper exists in England and Europe, along with a scarcity of scrap metal.

German, Japanese and Indian sources have been outbidding American buyers in the domestic market as a result.

Walk-In Trap Humane Way To Catch Strays

By R. ROBERT MAGGS

Stray cats are a problem in many communities. They are not only a nuisance but also a health hazard. They can spread diseases and parasites. They can also be a danger to children and other animals. A humane way to catch strays is by using a walk-in trap. This trap is made of wire mesh and has a door that opens when the cat enters. The cat is then caught in the trap and can be taken to a veterinarian for treatment. This method is humane and effective.

And neither she nor the kittens were in any danger. The type of trap used is a walk-in trap. It is made of wire mesh and has a door that opens when the cat enters. The cat is then caught in the trap and can be taken to a veterinarian for treatment. This method is humane and effective.

Drugs Sold in Jail, Addict Tells Court

Prison officials have been unable to stop the use of drugs among addicts at Oakalla, a confessed addict said in County Court Wednesday.

Dennis Charles O'Brien, 28, of 713 Pembroke, charged with being a habitual criminal, testified to the use of drugs in Oakalla by prisoners before Judge J. B. Clearthorpe during cross-examination by Crown counsel George Gregory.

The admission of drug sales made in prison came after O'Brien had told court, during questioning by his own counsel, G. V. Pelton of Vancouver, that it was possible for him to "kick" the habit in 30 days.

HARD TO GET WORK

O'Brien admitted he was addicted to drugs and could not get work because it was hard, and often impossible to get work while addicted.

"There are two types of addicts here on the coast," he said. "The Vancouver addict can get his supply at a number of places but here in Victoria addicts must travel across to make a buy."

It was for this reason he was carrying 100 capsules of heroin when arrested on September 6, he said.

"If an addict here doesn't pick up when in Vancouver, he can make a good number of trips to keep supplied," he said. "But by having in quantity in Vancouver, the addict can save some money that would be spent on transportation both ways."

TRYING TO STOP

It was here that O'Brien said he was trying to break the habit and could have done it in 30 days by taking less and less until he had completely withdrawn from narcotics.

"It has to be done in this way to avoid severe suffering," he said.

Prison cures are called "cold turkey" cures because the addict is left out of and is allowed to suffer until cured, he told the court.

In his cross-examination, Mr. Gregory asked O'Brien if after a recent 10-month stay in Oakalla he felt he was cured.

"Physically yes but not mentally," O'Brien said.

"Well, surely, if you can cure yourself in 10 days a 10-month period in jail would cure you because you would not be able to get any more," Mr. Gregory said.

COULD GET DRUGS

"Wouldn't say that," O'Brien answered.

"Do you mean it is possible to get narcotics in Oakalla while they are in Oakalla?" Crown counsel asked.

"Oh, yes, it is going on," he answered.

"Well, surely then the way does not condone the way doesn't he try to prevent it?" Mr. Gregory said.

"He tries," O'Brien said.

O'Brien then told court that when he came out of the prison he was met by addicts in Vancouver and given needles to take.

If you tried to get work here as you say, but from where did you get the money to continue purchasing the narcotics?" Mr. Gregory asked.

"I sold some jewelry in Vancouver that had been returned to me by Gordon Wismer. The jewelry had been seized some time ago and Mr. Wismer got it back for me," he said.

O'Brien said he had been given narcotics by addicts in Vancouver as a "friendly" gesture and didn't realize how quickly he would become addicted.

"I was taking six capsules a day at the time of my arrest on September 6. They are only six per cent. but people here believe they are 100 per cent."

He said he had been up as high as 12 capsules a day at one time but it was not an usual high dose.

"I have known persons who have taken much more than that," he said.

SALE DENIED

He denied selling narcotics to 18-year-old Lenora Watson, recently sentenced to six months for possession of narcotics. He said he gave them to her.

Summing up, Mr. Pelton said he was confident the habitual criminal charge had never been written for addicts whose only desire was to satisfy their craving for more drugs.

"Narcotics is no crime if it is the only drug that a person can get," he said.

Law enforcement officials will never clean up the drug situation by arrests and convictions. "These people must have help and understanding," he said.

"There must be more help for the addicts. We need a system to adjust them to life after prison, from prison to life."

He criticized society for not taking proper steps to aid drug addicts.

Summing up for the Crown, Mr. Gregory said he would show that O'Brien had been living a persistently criminal life.

"It is unfortunate we haven't a better system for treating addicts. But we are here to uphold the existing laws," he said.

For O'Brien to get into as much trouble as he had after only being out of prison for three months, he must have been leading a criminal life, Mr. Gregory contended.

"The charge before us is not for distributing drugs, but the accused has said he gave the girl, Watson, drugs and also gave drugs to other friends."

He said the sentence imposed should be a substantial one for his crime.

JUDGMENT DELAYED

Judge J. B. Clearthorpe said he would like time to study the evidence put before him and the case was adjourned until Tuesday at 11 a.m. for judgment on the habitual criminal charge.

O'Brien was sentenced by Mr. Justice H. S. Wood in Assize court Tuesday to two years in prison for possession of narcotics.

Before the Assize court Wednesday he pleaded guilty to a second charge of possession before the Assize court was read against him.

Franchise officials expect the list of eligible voters may run as high as 32,700.

Election day has been set for November 24 and nomination day is November 16. The voters list closes October 31. Registration booths will be placed in 10 downtown Victoria locations.

Returning officer will be Alan Macfarlane, government official said Wednesday.

RCAF Hunt For Fishboat Finds Nothing

VANCOUVER (CP)—The RCAF Wednesday night called off its search for a U.S. fish boat which had been sighted earlier from the Cape Lazo area near Comox.

"We had a plane out all day and the motor vessel from Comox and we couldn't find anything," an RCAF spokesman said. "Lost of times vessels call for help then get aid and fail to notify us."

DOUBLE CALCULATION

Mr. Joyce said calculations in his department might be doubled because the new act calls for assessment on 75 per cent of improvements for school purposes while the city uses 65 per cent for general taxation.

The government's new equalization bill was given approval at the recent session of the legislature. It provides for equalization of assessments over the whole province for school purposes and for the first time allows assessment of machinery in manufacturing plants.

Deane Finlayson Nominated by PCs

Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson will face the voters for the third time in six months, November 24, when he stands against Finance Minister Einar Gunderson in the Victoria riding by-election.

He was defeated in both the June provincial election (Oak Bay) and the August federal election (Nanaimo).

Both the CCF and Liberal parties are expected to enter candidates for the B.C. seat, made vacant by the resignation of Social Credit's Percy Wright.

The choice of Mr. Finlayson was unanimously made Wednesday night at the annual meeting of the Victoria PC Association in the Williams Building.

"I believe," said Mr. Finlayson, "that there is a critical need in the provincial government today for a strong, vigorous opposition," he told the meeting. "That is why I'm running in this by-election."

"This is vital to any democratic form of administration, no matter what party is in power. The need for this in B.C. has been accentuated by the Social Credit attitude during the session just concluded," he said.

"There was a clear-cut tendency toward the pressure type of administration, where legislation of great importance to the employment and the general well-being of the province is delayed or not introduced."

"Whether this rammed legislation was intentional or due to its inexperience, it must be halted. B.C. otherwise will be saddled with a dictatorial form of government in the guise of a democratic regime," he said.

"This can only be averted by a stronger fighting opposition in the legislature," Mr. Finlayson said.

Officers elected at the meeting were Robert Patch, elected president; Max David, first vice-president; Alec Reid, second vice-president; Mrs. R. C. Campbell, secretary; and Mrs. G. H. McNaughton, treasurer.

Three delegates chosen for the annual meeting of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association were Einar Gunderson, Monte Drake and Alec Reid.

A constitution of the 10 per cent liquor tax, as far as its effect on prices, revenues and the government's revenue, was discussed by the government Wednesday.

The 10 per cent tax, which applies on beer, will be applied to public houses or premises where "veterans club" members are allowed.

TAX ON BOTTLES

The old 3 per cent sales tax on beer will still apply, but bottled beer sold in these premises. A veterans club which also has a club license to sell hard liquor will charge 10 per cent on its sales.

MISSSES EXEMPT

Military messes will be exempt from any tax on beer or liquor sold by the mess, but will pay 1 per cent on bulk purchases at the liquor store.

A government official said Wednesday the order in council merely renews an old regulation but has the effect of maintaining the status quo for these categories.

Future of Industry at Stake, Board Told Island Dairymen Fight Milk Quota

LADYSMITH—Decontrol regulations establishing a quota for mainland shippers "hold the future of the Vancouver Island dairy industry," the provincial milk board heard Wednesday.

J. H. Shanahan, president of Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association, made the comment introducing a brief in the milk board at a meeting here.

The brief urged indefinite postponement of quotas for "outside organizations" as no warnings were given island producers.

The meeting was marked by comments of civic officials.

Reeve E. A. Beasley, North Cowichan, declared the new legislation was discrimination against Vancouver Island.

The legislation interfered with the personal liberty of all in the dairy business on Vancouver Island, added Reeve Joseph May Jr. C. Wragg, Duncan.

Casey of Saanich. It was class legislation and not democracy in any shape or form, he said.

JUST WATCHING

Allderman Frank Mother Victoria, declared his council viewed the dairy men's situation with sympathy and that he was present on a watching brief.

Mayer Loran K. Jordan Port Alberni asked the board why there was duplication in deliveries, trucks loaded in his area with fluid milk for Victoria passing trucks from Vancouver loaded with milk for Port Alberni.

It appeared that residents made the choice, replied board chairman E. C. Carr.

Cowichan Valley could not guarantee the farmers for support in winter and contract in summer, began business, remarked Samuel G. Evans, an old friend of Miss Jones, identified the body.

No testimony was heard Wednesday morning.

Inquest into the Saturday traffic death of Miss Laura Jones, 31 Gorge Road, was adjourned for one week Wednesday morning.

Corner E. C. Hart swore in the five-man jury and had it view the body before calling the adjournment because of the absence of two material witnesses.

He noted his city's chamber of commerce had produced a brochure and mailed it extensively to encourage new farmers to the area.

Presenting the brief, Henry G. Robinson told the meeting that association members were prepared to give the regulations a fair trial in most cases, "but there are some regulations we cannot accept because they are absolutely contrary to the spirit in which the regulations were set up."

He said it was impossible to reconcile the existing system on a permanent basis a share of the island's market in producers of another area with the regulations enjoining "to increase the consumption of milk while still guaranteeing the farmers he would suffer no loss."

Most producers established on the island because it was deficiency area where all milk could be marketed at fluid price. Mr. Robinson continued and they had met all various requirements.

"They contend the milk board has neither moral nor legal right to give away part of our market to anyone on any terms," he said.

NORMAL POLICY

Normal policy everywhere was for a milked to expand in winter and contract in summer. Most island producers were dairymen only producing for the fluid market. There were no other dairymen.

He said he heard a statement that the milk board was planning to increase the quota for the island producers.

Navy Cooks Must Learn Three Trades

By JIM BRAHAN

Before a man can become a cook on a Navy ship, he must first learn three trades: cook, baker and butcher. This is the new requirement for all shipboard cooks, according to a statement issued by the Navy Department.

The statement said that the new requirement was necessary because of the increasing complexity of shipboard cooking. It also said that the new requirement would be phased in over a period of six months.

Oil Executive Presents Case

Last month Harry Young in his business column took issue with various comments made in letters to the B.C. Automobile Association and The Daily Colonist by Ralph D. Baker, president and managing director of Standard Oil of B.C. on the general matter of gasoline and oil prices.

Mr. Baker did not agree with the conclusions which were drawn and he has forwarded a reply to the points raised. His letter follows:

But the clipping of Harry Young's little piece in the Colonist of September 6 has just reached my desk.

I hesitate to debate the meaning of words with an editor, and above all I dislike being drawn into argument under circumstances such as this. You newspaper fellows enjoy such a tremendous advantage. You provide the audience or not, as you see fit. And you have the inherent advantage of being able to terminate the debate at will—and after having had the "last say."

But I like newspapers, and believe in them, and feel that they aim to—and in fact, do, on the whole—perform an inestimable public service in their seeking for the truth. The fact that they often do injustice and injury because of human error or misinformation is natural and incidental, and on the whole unimportant in the larger view. So here goes.

In the first place I don't believe that I was petulant in my letter to the B.C. Automobile Association. There is no evidence that I have been capricious or changeable in my views. Nor have I been fretful. I was simply annoyed by the attitude displayed and the methods employed. If I wasn't petulant then, I take it, I was not out of character. Moreover, my letter to that body was personal and was sent to you as back ground information with no thought that your staff might use it as was done.

The important thing, however, is that in using it as was done, and in making the editorial observations which Harry Young did make, your newspaper has indicated that it too is confused on the question of the identical pricing of standard commodities. I say "confused" because it would seem clear that you are not seeking an answer, but rather that you feel you have it. It's on this matter of knowing something which I don't believe is so that I feel you're confused.

In placing himself and your paper on record in connection with a statement I made to the effect that the various oil companies had different operating circumstances and, therefore, different cost relationships,

Young out of context—a sin, incidentally, which he obviously views tolerantly.

As to this passage I think I need dwell only upon his question. I am attaching a copy of a letter I wrote to a customer on the same subject which, I think, deals fully with the other implications. The question: "Does this mean that the price is charged according to what the market will stand?" With perhaps some clarification of market will stand—the answer is that that is precisely what is meant. The answer could not possibly be otherwise. Prices must be exactly what the market will stand—no more, no less. I know without your telling me that that is the factor of determination in pricing your newspaper on the street as well as in pricing your advertising space. You'd be derelict as manager if you sold for less; you'd be both derelict and foolhardy if you sold for more. Even the threat of competition is compelling. Moreover, there is the law of diminishing returns.

That phraseology "what the market will stand," has unpleasant connotations in the public mind. It suggests rapacity and ruthlessness and an immoral disregard of public interest. I have been tempted to feel that this fact had some influence on that choice of wording. But that's beside the point. Don't wish to quarrel. My aim is agreement, if possible, and a better understanding in any event.

Certainly in a free, competitive market where there is freedom of choice on the part of the buyer, and freedom from artificial restraint and regulation on the part of the producers and distributors, commodity prices must inevitably settle at that precise level of what the market will stand.

In closing his little piece Mr. Young made this observation: "Mr. Baker does not explain why the price of gasoline, which includes 10 cents of tax, should have gone up less than five cents in the past seven years while the price of fuel oils, on which the tax is only half a cent, should have more than doubled. That is the gist of the complaint by Victoria house-holders."

This is a good question—and a painful one for house-holders. I know because I buy lots of oil and have to pay for it at the identical price paid by newspaper publishers and everyone else. Moreover, what has happened is easy to understand, if you have the facts, but perhaps not so easy to explain briefly. But I'll try.

The whole answer, but perhaps not the whole story, is a combination of market demand for the product in its primary form (furnace oils and stove oils), plus an increase in its value for secondary and progressive processing (as charging stocks for catalytic cracking units) has been the cause. Now, as I say, that is perhaps too brief and too general but once we accept the concept that petroleum is not only a highly competitive commodity in a relatively free economy—and once we give proper weight to the fact it is an international and world commodity—many of the perplexing questions can be resolved by extension in our own deliberations on this very complex question.

Changing technology, new uses, and shifting demands can and do cause constant readjustments as between the values (prices) of the various components derived from any given raw material. This is true of timber, milk or the complex ores. It is equally true of petroleum. And that is what happened in respect of the price relationship between heating oils and gasoline.

If you disagree with my views as set forth here in any particulars, I should be glad to discuss them further with you.

Yours truly,
R. D. Baker.

P. S.
I was not pleased with Harry Young's statement in respect of the British Columbia Automobile Association's position that "it was a watch dog stance of a reputable organization looking after the interests of some 40,000 members." I wonder what information you had which justified your paper in making that statement of endorsement, followed by the statement that I didn't see it in that light. You had already said

Real Estate Board Admits Salesmen

BY HARRY YOUNG

Colonist Business Editor.
Real estate salesmen who are employed by firms in membership of the Real Estate Board of Victoria, were informed Wednesday that they would automatically become associate members of the board.

At a meeting of the board attended by more than 60 members and salesmen, it was explained that this new class of membership was incorporated in the new constitution.

The salesmen members will be given a vote in the board through a representative on the executive committee.

The eligible salesmen, who number 163 are to hold a meeting Thursday October 23 to appoint their representative to the executive committee.

Explaining the new constitution A. H. Reid, member of the executive explained that salesmen could be members of the board only if their employers were members. A salesman moving from a member firm to a non-member firm would lose his membership.

Cost of membership is $5 a year, but one salesman with each member firm is exempted from payment.

One salesman objected to compulsory membership. Mr. Reid in reply said that while membership would be compulsory the payment of the fee would be the responsibility of the employer and not of the salesman.

He said that a mistake had been made in sending out bills to the new salesmen members. He indicated, however, that employers would probably claim the money from their salesmen.

Herbert Brown, vice-president,

I was petulant and out of character. Then you say the other fellow is right and therefore I'm wrong—but you'll print what I said anyway. Is that good and fair reporting? Or were you being a bit petulant about a situation which you didn't like and didn't understand, but concerning which you didn't take the trouble to get the facts?

R. D. B.

explained some of the advantages to salesmen of membership. These included the board's arbitration machinery in dealing with commission disputes between members.

Charles Heisterman suggested the new constitution might be amended in regard to commission disputes between members. Under the present regulations both interested firms have to agree to allow the board to arbitrate.

Mr. Heisterman thought the request for an arbitration by one member should be sufficient to start an inquiry.

He was informed that any change of the constitution would require notice of motion.

Famous Detective, F. Cruickshank Dies

VANCOUVER (CP)—Forbes Cruickshank, one of British Columbia's most famous detectives, died Tuesday. He was 86.

Mr. Cruickshank won international fame for his work in solving the notorious Beryl G. hijacking and murder case in 1924 and was given credit for clearing up a $42,000 Nanaimo bank robbery the following year.

The Beryl G., a small vessel in the rum-running trade between Canada and the United States, was found off the State of Washington in 1924, her decks covered with bloodstains. The owner, Capt. George Gillis, and his son Bill, 17, were missing.

A year later the officer was instrumental in the capture of two bandits who held up a bank in Nanaimo and escaped with $42,000. The bandits, including William Bagley, later hanged in California.

Mr. Cruickshank, who rose to assistant commissioner of the provincial force, was chief officer in the 1932 Poughkeepsie trials when some 600 Sons of Freedom were imprisoned on Piers Island.

Native of Scotland, Mr. Cruickshank served with the RCMP and the police force before moving to Vancouver in 1917. He retired in 1940.

Secession Unsound Move, Murison Tells Ratepayers

DUNCAN—Secession of the Chemainus section of North Cowichan municipality is economically unsound, C. G. A. P. Murison declared at the annual meeting of Quamichan ratepayers.

It would mean "the formation of a small municipality," he said.

With the reeve and Councilor Murison campaigning on the secession issue, this meeting set the tenor of the election campaign which will get open next month.

Officers of the Quamichan Ratepayers' Association for the next year will be D. Frane, president; Robert Evans, vice-president; F. P. Jackson, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. H. M. Baret, F. E. Blane and Joe E. Garner, executive.

"No matter what shape the future takes," he said, "we would be much better able to face it as one financially strong, well-balanced municipality rather than two weak ones."

The ratepayers' meeting was the first opportunity for a public discussion of the secession question in North Cowichan since the council adopted a by-law to be put to the ratepayers at the December election.

Councillor Murison is running for reeve, and the present reeve, A. E. Beasley, is running for council.

Reeve Beasley told the meeting he was running for council because if secession succeeded, and he was reeve, it would mean serious complications.

NO SIDES
Reeve Beasley declined to take sides on the secession issue, but concluded with an appeal to "get back in line and work for the whole municipality."

Reeve Beasley said the dual system of administration already needed in Chemainus was a point in favor of secession.

Reeve Beasley agreed that most of the revenue would come from Chemainus mill and said that without the mill there would be no secession talk from the northern section.

The reeve predicted that even if the northern secession fails, there will immediately crop up

Top U.S. Judges Take Long Look

Sweater Girl Startles Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stunning blonde in a tight-fitting knit dress Wednesday startled an old United States Supreme Court tradition.

Tall, blue-eyed Belladonna Villines, a former Chicago lawyer, stood smiling before the nine black-robed high court justices.

Be admitted to practice before the court.

Smash the ancient, unwritten rule that no female even remotely resembling a "sweater girl" must ever divert the attention of the judges from their thoughts of law.

Miss Villines threw her shoulders back to look up at the judges on their high bench in the brief ceremony.

Her knit tawncolored dress was set off with a lacy, knitted collar that sparkled with pale gold beads. The V-neck front was cut down about six inches.

Her curly hair, parted in the center in front, swirled back over her head and long tresses fell to the back of her collar.

Justice William O. Douglas took one look, then took off his glasses for another long look. Justice Felix Frankfurter, 70, kept his eyes on law books before him, until Justice Robert H. Jackson nudged him. Then both looked and smiled.

It was only a couple of years back that a girl reporter was told that she could not sit at reporters' tables before the Supreme Court.

Sleepless Bears Causing Trouble in Eastern Canada

BEAR ISLAND, Ont. (CP) — Bears can't go to bed these days because it's too hot. That means grump bruins, and possible trouble.

Such is the plight of thousands of bears, caught without berries in an unseasonable warm spell from Manitoba to Quebec. They are on the rampage in search of food, smashing in walls, windows and doors.

Wildlife officials say the bears will not hibernate because of the warm weather that has spread across the northern areas during the last 10 days.

Temperatures have soared as high as 70 degrees in some districts when bears should be thinking of the deep winter sleep.

Manitoba's chief game guard, Ian A. P. Davey, says the weather may start serious bear trouble.

"They can't hunt because they are too fat and there are no berries left for them to pick," he said.

In Port Arthur and Fort William, in Algoma Park, where bears normally are protected, and other districts, bears have come out of the bush to wreck many cottages and camps.

boarded up for the winter, in their search for food. The animals claw through roofs, smash down doors and tear away window frames in seeking entry.

One house in the Timmins area was broken into while the owner slept. A 30-pound bear cub got into John Seraphin's home through a cellar window.

At least 100 bears have been shot by forest rangers in Algoma Park, a provincial game preserve. The rangers normally protect animals but have been forced to shoot them.

More than 40 cottages, many of them owned and closed for the winter by United States residents, have been left a shambles.

In the Kirkland Lake district, farmer R. J. Timmer of Earleton has killed 37 bears so far this season. He has collected $360 in Ontario government bounties.

The government blames Mrs. E. Wilson said a bear slept one night on a couch on her verandah. The animal fled, smashing a window box and tearing a hole in a screen.

Bounties are $10 for an adult and $5 for a cub.

Bennett Warns Of Poison Pens

By T. A. MYERS
Colonist-Legislative Reporter
VANCOUVER—“Poison Pen” newspaper and magazine writers are pouring out “misleading propaganda” to block the spread of Social Credit across the nation, Premier W. A. C. Bennett charged here Wednesday night.

The premier spoke to a predominantly female audience of 132 at the end of Wednesday's Social Credit women's auxiliary convention and on the eve of the B.C. Social Credit League's provincial convention.

The women heard the premier's most outspoken attack on the press, a favorite Social target, since the one he launched in mid-campaign last May.

SHARPENS AXE
The premier noted Social Credit was still running into newspaper criticism in spite of a full year of achievement and fulfilled promises. He didn't mind that, he said. “After all, it's the enemy stone that sharpens the axe.”

But “certain” newspapers and magazines were misleading the people with false propaganda, he said.

He cited an article by R. K. Sandwell, former editor of Toronto Saturday Night—in the Financial Post of September 26.

He quoted Mr. Sandwell as saying “Premier Bennett is reported to have said that the minimum age for voters in B.C. would be lowered to 19 for high school graduates and college students only. All others would have to wait until they were 21 to vote.”

Mr. Sandwell's article expressed fear that the principle of setting educational standards for voters would be extended.

“What utter rot!” the premier exploded as he read the piece. “You see how they do it: they start with a false statement and then build a great case on it and circulate it all across Canada.”

“That's the kind of tactic that brings certain newspapers and magazines into disrepute,” he said. “These people with their poison pens are afraid to meet the direct challenge of Social Credit. . . they are endeavoring to mislead the people of Canada.”

“They are so prejudiced, so biased and so fearful of the truth.”

Reds Return To Meeting

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communist Poles and Czechs ended a three-day boycott of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission today, but there was no prospect that anti-Red “explanations” to balking prisoners would be resumed soon.

Arabs Attack U.S. Offices

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Arabs, angered by the Jordan-Israeli border situation smashed office windows of the United States information service here Wednesday and wrecked a U.S. embassy car.

Troops of Jordan's Arab Legion, guarding British, American and French diplomatic quarters, repulsed an attempt by the demonstrators to force their way into the UNIS headquarters.

Arab resentment at United States backing for Israel over the last five years was reflected in the outburst—apparently sparked by the alleged Israeli attack October 14 on three border villages in which—Jordan authorities reported 66 persons were killed.

A three-hour strike was held in vari ous towns of Jordan as a protest against the Israeli attack. Business was suspended, buses and taxis stopped—running.

Red Feather At $137,130

According to an audit Wednesday night another $73,550 will put the Red Feather campaign over the top. Official figure now stands at $137,130.

With big donations scheduled to come in from the industrial commercial division within the next few days there is an excellent possibility that the mark will be reached by the end of this week, officials said.

According to A. de B. McPhillips, who is chairman of the professional men's division, the number of call backs has made the drive very slow.

“On the other hand we are gratified to note a substantial increase in individual donations this year,” he said.

All over the city the big army of volunteer canvassers is finding out that it “takes longer to collect more.” It is because of canvasser enthusiasm that the drive shows great promise of success, he said.

F. E. Winslow, special names division chief, reports that he has nearly completed his job. F. N. Cabellu, who is in charge of the armed forces canvass, reports that he is within 80 per cent of his quota. “We have

Turpin Blames Mental Trouble

NEW YORK (AP)—Randy Turpin, the pride of Britain who hoped to regain the world's middleweight boxing championship Wednesday night, attributed his defeat by Bobo Olson to the fact he “had personal things on my mind.”

“I think I could have stopped him in eight if I was right mentally,” Turpin said in his dressing room.

Turpin has had marital troubles and has been named in a divorce suit.

Turpin spent a considerable time during the fight backed up against the ropes, his fists lowered taking a pummeling from Olson.

“Why did you stay on the ropes?” he was asked.

“Search me,” was his candid answer.

“I'll fight anyone,” Turpin declared.

“I felt as strong as ever at the finish, but I was just missing,” he said. “No, he didn't hurt me, not even when he knocked me down.”

Before today's meeting, however, Lieut.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the commission, told newspaper men he intended to call an indefinite recess to commission meetings.

He said he could not ask the commission to meet again until “explanations” to reluctant PWs are again ready to start.

Only anti-Communist Chinese PWs attended Red interviews in the explanation hearings in the Korean neutral zone. And their appearances have been punctuated by kicks, screams and curses by the PWs.

DELAY INDEFINITE

Thimayya said the talks would not be resumed unless the Communists agree to talk to Chinese captives, willing to meet them or until balking North Korean PWs agree to come out of their compounds for interviews.

Thimayya has asked the leaders of nearly 8,000 North Korean PWs to go peacefully before the Red “explaners.” An answer is expected Friday.

“I didn't know until I got in the ring. I just found out he was easier to hit on the ropes and I let him have it.”

“On the two knockdowns (the ninth and 10th rounds) I caught him with a left to the jaw first and then a right. I never thought I hit him hard enough to knock him out.”

“I was stunned for a while. But I shook it off. After that I knew I could make it.”

Asked when he recognized Turpin's weakness on the ropes, the place Olson did the most damage, the champion said:

'Blackjack' Attack by RCMP Left No Sign Doctor Reports

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Charges of RCMP brutality toward Sons of Freedom arrested September 9 at Perry Siding near here “are completely unfounded,” official sources said Wednesday night.

Charges of “violently attacking the group with blackjacks” and “striking men and women into unconsciousness” made by Freedomites now imprisoned are “utterly false,” Inspector J. B. Harris, commanding officer, said.

This was corroborated in a report to RCMP by Dr. N. E. Morrison, summoned to the scene at police request.

In his report, Dr. Morrison said he examined the people “who claimed to have been injured by police.”

“Those claiming injury were all women and were examined in some detail and found that all were in a high state of excitement and hysteria.”

“In no case did I find serious injury and most injuries complained of were scuffs on the skin which would appear to have been caused by a light fist instrument such as a strap or no large bruises.”

Over 300 persons moved to the tent village called “Polatka” in late August and early September, where they said they gathered to pray. In full view of the Number 6 highway leading to the Sholan Valley and in view of the Perry Siding schoolhouse, they paraded about in the nude, “defying warnings issued by the members of the RCMP that such action would lead to complaints and consequent arrests,” Inspector Harris said.

An advertisement published by imprisoned Sons of Freedom in a Nelson newspaper Wednesday, charged police attacked the group without “a word of warning.”

“A mob of women, stripped, crying and screaming at officers, attacked members of the RCMP,” the ad charged.

“The government's motion asked the House to approve “the action of Her Majesty's government in British Guiana. It was signed by Sir Winston Churchill, Secretary of State, Anthony Eden, Colonial Secretary, Oliver Lyttelton and Housing Minister Harold MacMillan.”

Labour MPs at a private meeting decided to vote against the motion. However, unless something unforeseen occurs, the government should win the test.

A government white paper Tuesday charged that the Peoples Progressive Party, headed by former Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan, followed the now established Communist routine to take over the government of the colony which is within striking distance of the Panama Canal.

Jagan and his former education minister, Linden Burnham, arrived in London Wednesday to deny any Communist plot in Guiana.

“The vote will be taken today at the end of formal debate on the action.”

London Running Out of Gas

LONDON (Reuters)—Hundreds of London's 8,000 buses will be forced into garages by Monday gas Wednesday night and had to beg careful here and there to get home as a gasoline tank truck strike gripped the capital.

More than 6,000 oil distributing workers were on strike. Officials said that if the strike continues through the week all of London's 8,000 buses will be forced into garages by Monday or Tuesday. The same will apply to taxis and many private cars.

The strikers are demanding more pay and full union recognition. “London for all practical purposes is without petrol (gasoline),” an automobile association spokesman said.

Meanwhile, a meat cutters' strike insured that weekend shoppers will be able to buy only “austerity” size cuts of meat. Butchers have been virtually unrationed on meat this summer and fall.

The 600-striking meat cutters and weighers indicated they will go back to work Friday—too late to meet the heavy weekend buying demands.

George Twyman, 3438 Fort Street, reported to city police Wednesday that his bicycle had been stolen from the Capital Bowling Alley. It was a red and white CCM.

French Farmers Protest High Cost of Living

Farmers throughout central France recently staged protest demonstrations against the high cost of living and the low prices they are receiving for their produce. Setting up barricades, using all types of wagons and cars to block the roads, the farmers explained it was only a “symbolic” protest. Only a few scattered demonstrations of force and no incidents were reported. The agriculture question, however is still one of the top issues in the National Assembly debates which are to take place soon. Above, police and security officers are seen clearing one of the blocked national roads near Poitiers. —(Central Press Canadian.)

Firm Claimed Planning Hotel In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver newspaper says in a news story today the Conrad Hilton International hotel organization is considering building a “multi-million-dollar” hotel in Vancouver.

The paper said a Hilton representative was in the city a week ago completing a survey of Vancouver's hotel needs and likely locations.

Mayor Fred Hume, who has been leading a drive for more hotel accommodation here, said he “could not say anything yet” on the report.
